

Contents

1. Introduction
2. Rebuilding permanent houses for those located outside the buffer zone
  - Household composition and livelihoods outside the buffer zone
  - Extent of rebuilding
  - Location of rebuilding -preferences
  - Type of houses - preferences
  - Type of housing assistance - preferences
  - Eligibility for rebuilding assistance
  - Funds for rebuilding and welfare effects
  - Ability for household to rebuild own house
  - Ability to rebuild own house in the future through training
  - Ability to give a receive help constructing houses for others
  - Availability of skilled and unskilled labour in locality and cost of labour
  - Assistance for rebuilding from community based organisations
  - Availability of building materials especially sand and timber
3. Relocation of households whose damaged houses lie within the buffer zone
  - household characteristics in the buffer zone (of those in unusable houses)
  - awareness of buffer zone and enforcement
  - eligibility for relocation
  - information and communication on relocation sites
  - preferences for relocation
  - land availability
  - type of assistance and type of houses
  - welfare effects of relocation policy
  - social conflicts due to relocation
4. Land market, land administration and land related conflicts
5. Other issues on progress with tsunami relief and reconstruction
6. Summary of methodology
7. Characteristics of 14 Grama Niladari Divisions surveyed